A Church Reaching Out to MKs

Affectionately called MKs, missionary kids may be far away, but they are not forgotten by this loving church! Foothills Bible Church of Littleton, Colorado has a well-developed plan that ministers to children of their missionaries from birth through college. At each stage of growth, the children are reminded that they are loved and important to the church body back home.

About ten years ago, Missions Director Joyce Feil launched the Missionary Care program at the church, and they have developed several innovative components that show love to missionaries' children. These activities involve scores of their church members... and succeed in making many MKs feel very special!

One of these creative ideas is College Care in a Can!

How the Plan Works

A church member has a continuous supply of large cans (#10 size, about three quarts). Her husband delivers Planters nuts, and he saves large empty cans for the project. These containers are washed and filled as care packages for the college-age children of missionaries supported by their church. Each college student receives one of these cans twice a semester or four times through the school year! One is shipped near the beginning of each semester and another in time for finals--just when the students really need encouragement!

Long before this happens, the church has been busy preparing and planning so these packages can be personal and meet special needs and wants. Every college student completes a survey (see tool available--Tool Package) telling about himself or herself, hobbies, interests, needs and likes. Using the survey, the church creates a fake CD out of cardstock with a label giving information about each student and items he or she might like in a care package. (See tool for CD labels --Tool Package.) Each CD is then placed in a CD case with the student's name on it.

Volunteers cover the cans with contact paper, personalizing each one. The cans are prominently displayed during the Missions Emphasis week when church attenders may each take one, along with a CD and a set of instructions (see tool--Tool Package). Church members fill the cans with appropriate goodies for their particular recipients, adding photos of their families and encouraging notes. The cans are returned to the church where they are stored and shipped at the appropriate time. The church pays shipping using funds from the Missionary Care Account. They pledge, "You shop. We ship."

Each College Care in a Can is valued between $25 and $30. The size of the cans limits the contents of the packages and the dimensions of the parcels for shipping. But the college students love the Starbucks cards, phone cards, ink cartridges, batteries, film, stamps, school supplies, toiletries, and treats that fit inside!

The College Care in a Can blesses the church members, the MKs--and their parents! Missionary Care Coordinator Corrie Kozacek is enthusiastic about the responses from participants.
